GERMAN STRENGTH IS TURNED BACK

By J. C. OESTREICHER

Crack American troops, flushed with fruits of record victory on the peninsula of Brittany, hammered hard at the roads that lead to Paris today, with every sign pointing to early collapse of German resistance before the French capital.

Dispatches from the battlefield placed United States forces in the pivotal city of Vire, only 140 miles from Paris, while other American troops surged into St. Brieuc on the north Breton coast and crumpled with the Nazi in Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient, great harbors and naval bases already virtually lost to the Germans.

Guadalcanal Anniversary

This seventh day of August, second anniversary of the first great American triumph in the war—the invasion of Guadalcanal—saw the Germans taking a historic beating on all fronts. Russian troops swept deep into Poland and toward the mountain passes of Czechoslovakia, depriving Adolf Hitler of one of his few remaining sources of oil supply at the town of Drohobycz, and the Anglo-American armies liberating central Italy from German control.

But it was in France, greatest prize of Hitler's triumphs in the days when the German army was a formidable if not invincible thing, that the choicest gains for Allied arms were won.

Poland's Largest Oil Center Is Taken From Nazis By Soviet Troops

MAY DRIVE INTO CZECHOSLOVAKIA

By NATALIA RENE
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW, Aug. 7.—The Red army battering ram smashed relentlessly today at swaying German lines across the battlefields of Poland, hammering forward closer to Warsaw and the border of German Silesia after depriving the Nazis of Poland's largest oil center.

Seizure of the oil producing center of Drohobycz in south Poland leaving the Germans the battered Ploesti fields of Romania as their last major source of this fuel, pre-empted a possible early thrust into territory of Czechoslovakia.

Vital Oil Center

A special order of the day by Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced that troops of the Fourth Ukrainian army, now commanded by Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov, took Drohobycz, 15 and one-half miles northwest of captured Stry, Drohobycz.

Alfred guns are not shelling any part of Drohobycz in accordance with the desire to inflict as little damage as possible on the colorful city, but reports from the front said there were plentiful exchanges of machine-gun fire.

The southern section of the city below the river was held firmly in allied hands as the South Africans crossed the water barrier in the final battle to oust the Nazis completely from the Tuscan center of art and culture.

The Germans, unmindful of the city's architectural treasures, continued, however, to hurl artillery shells into that part of Florence south of the Arno river which now is in eight enemy hands.

It appeared clear from the defensive positions which the Nazis held across the Arno river on either side of Florence that they will try to the last to oppose further crossing attempts by the allies.

Japanese Say Attempt Made To Bomb Davao

A "half-hearted attempt" by "enemy" planes to attack Davao, city on the island of Mindanao in the Philippines, was reported by the Jap Domei agency today.

One of the planes, according to the Domei report heard by U. S. government monitors, dropped "three small bombs" which were said to have "landed harmlessly into the sea."

The second plane, Domei asserted, "was sighted heading for Davao but this one fled before reaching the city over Davao city."

Domei declared that "absolutely no damage was caused by these enemy nuisance raiders."

The first plane, which was described as a "large" craft, was reportedly sighted over Davao at 1 a. m. Philippines time (noon Sunday EWT) while the second appeared about an hour later.

Senate opponents of the Murray-Kilgore "liberal" demobilization bill considered a compromise plan today to raise and standardize state unemployment insurance benefits during the postwar transition period.

Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the finance committee and leader of the "states' rights group," disclosed the plan. Present state compensation figures range from $10 to $18.50 weekly, while the compromise plan calls for about $20 a week. The Murray-Kilgore bill maximum is $35 a week.

The entire discussion, meanwhile, is expected to precipitate a bitter factional fight with southern Democrats siding with Republicans.

Shells Hurlled Into Florence By Nazi Guns

Allies Battle Germans On North Side Of Arno Inside Florence

(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Aug. 7.—South African troops of the allied eighth army in Italy came to grips today with German forces on the north bank of the Arno river inside the historic city of Florence.

The southern section of the city below the river was held firmly in allied hands as the South Africans crossed the water barrier in the final battle to oust the Nazis completely from the Tuscan center of art and culture.

Seventeen More Jap Ships Sunk; Thirty Damaged

American Naval Task Force Inflicts Another Big Defeat On Japs

By RICHARD V. HALER
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 7.—A vast American naval task force, freely prowling waters around the Japanese mainland, tore another huge chunk out of Japan's shipping and war fleet by sinking 17 enemy vessels and damaging 30 others in a violent two-day battle August 2-4 (west longitude time).

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the latest American sea-air victory in a special communique and revealed that our losses were 16 planes and 19 flight personnel.

Listed among the enemy ships sent to the bottom when the U. S. forces encountered a Jap convoy near the Bonin and Volcano islands were three destroyers or destroyer escorts, four cargo ships displacing 4,000 tons each, two other cargo ships, one large destroyer, one oiler and six barges.

At least one possibly sunk was a light cruiser, and five smaller Jap vessels, while two destroyers escorted one large cargo ship, five barges, two of which were troop laden. One landing craft and thirteen smaller vessels were damaged and two landing ships were grounded.

The light cruiser and five smaller vessels were listed in the "possibly sunk" category as they were last seen burning in the water.

Thirteen enemy planes also were destroyed.

In addition to the heavy damage wrought against enemy shipping facilities, Nimitz also disclosed that (Continued on Page Two)

Strike Leaders Ranks Of Enemy In Philadelphia In New Guinea Fired From Jobs Again Cut Down

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—The Philadelphia Transportation Company, long-silent on the wildest strike of its 6,000 operating employees, went into action today and fired three of the strike leaders, as operations, under U. S. Army guard, returned to 100 per cent of normal.

James H. McMenamin, chairman of the strikers' committee, and generally acknowledged as head spokesman for the law-defying, anti-Negro strikers, announced that he was "dismissed for cause" by PTC officials when he reported for his job on the subway system today.

Two other strike leaders, William C. Dixey and Frank Thompson, were given the same treatment, McMenamin said.

All three have been arrested under the Smith-Connally anti-strike law and are free under $2500 bail. (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. Forces In France Sweep Toward Paris

Move Ahead On 53-Mile Front—Chief Nazi Resistance At Vire

NO COUNTER ATTACKS OF NAZIS APPEAR

By KINGSBURY SMITH
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 7.—American troops swept toward Paris on a broad 53-mile front today, moving swiftly against the French capital in a breath-taking offensive that left the German army no opportunity for any counter-attack.

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that chief enemy resistance continued at Vire. But the Germans' left flank is still "in the air," a spokesman said, and there is no sign developing of important Nazi counter-thrusts.

Towns Captured
With the Nazis being hurled out of their stubbornly-contested positions in both Brittany and Normandy, the towns of St. Brieuc, Avranches, Huelgoat and Chateaufort were captured, while in recent actions 3,400 Germans were killed and 13,300 prisoners taken.

Southeast of Avranches, headquarters said, the situation continues to develop "extremely satisfactorily," while American forces operating west of Villedieu penetrated into the Bois de La Haye. Pushing beyond invested Vire toward Conde, the town of Lassay was taken by allied forces and another crossing of the Orne river was made southward of the forest of Grimbos.

Move Toward Paris
Armored American columns shot half a dozen spearheads eastward toward Paris, crossing the Mayenne river at five points to establish a new 40-mile assault line across the waterway, and driving to Domfront, 34 miles east of Avranches, after crossing the Varenne river.

Second Army Crosses Orne

By DOON CAMPBELL
(Reuter Correspondent)
(Distributed by U.S.S.)

WITH THE BRITISH IN FRANCE, Aug. 7.—The second army has crossed the Orne on a two-mile front above Thury-Harcourt and more than five miles behind Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's May-Sur-Orne-Rocquancourt line facing the Canadians.

They are forcing forward a gun-led wedge which has already engulfed La Bazothe and Lamoignon, some half a mile east of the Orne and within three miles north of Thury, and have cut the Fau-bourg De Vaucelles-Thury road.

The first crossing was made in strength last night and early this morning.

Opposition was met by the initial force but it was soon crushed and a long continuous line of troops was scrambling up the river's eastern banks and pushed toward the east. They have a large number of anti-tank guns with them.

The Germans have had no time to react to this sharp and sudden outflanking threat to their hinge position south of Caen.

A little time off from the daily work, a chance for a bit of a rest, and where do you go when you get the time, what will you do that's best? Will you take a trip to some mountain spot, or down to the surging sea, or will you stay right at home, my friend, that's better it seems to me. A chance to look round the old back yard and work in the garden plot, no traffic jams, and no high hotel rates and no pullman car that is hot. You can have as much fun right here at home without ever going away, and the cost is cheaper, the fun's the same, it's 84 today.

Fifteen Injured In Train Wreck

No Fatalities Reported As Train Jumps Track Near Lake City, Minnesota

LAKE CITY, Minn., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Fifteen persons suffered minor injuries when the 12-coach section of the Milwaukee Road Olympian was derailed at Lake City early today. There were no fatalities.

A spokesman for the road said the most seriously injured was a fireman, M. R. Potter, of Minneapolis, who suffered a broken rib.

The Olympian runs in two sections, the other being made up of sleepers.

Cause Unknown

All those injured were taken to hospitals for examination and treatment, but most of them had received only scratches and bruises, it was said.

The locomotive remained on the track, but all the cars left the rails, although none overturned.

The cause of the accident was not immediately determined, although it was reported a truck of one of the first cars had broken and caused the derailment.

FORTRESS EUROPE NOW BREACHED ON EAST, SOUTH, WEST

Europe could be defended from the western boundary of Germany down to the Alps and to the Mediterranean Sea.

However, in France at the moment it is entirely possible that the Germans might be planning a daring stroke. If the German command of the west wall has any strategic reserves it is probable that he will hurl the greatest strength he possesses at our columns which have broken with such terrific speed and for great distances into Brittany.

Eventualities Foreseen

It would seem that, until Allied forward bases are re-established and the invading American armor reinforced, the Germans might plan to hit with all their might in the hope of thus nullifying our most recent successes in Brittany.

Of course we may rest assured that General Montgomery has foreseen such eventualities. Already Allied reinforcements are probably pouring into Brittany. And it will perhaps only be a matter of a few days until we have complete possession of several more great French seaports. In spite of the possibility that the Nazis may plan a great counter-stroke at our troops in Brittany, your author states that the Allies will now never be thrown out of that area.

STRIKE LEADERS IN PHILADELPHIA FIRED FROM JOBS

The complete breakdown of the work stoppage, which began seven days ago over the upgrading of Negroes to probationary motormen and conductors, began at 2 a. m. today, as the strikers signed up "practically 100 per cent" for work.

Clamp Down On Strikers

Army officers, who took over control of the system under presidential order last Thursday, clamped down on the strikers after persuasive attempts to get them back on the job had failed.

The men and women operating employees—some sullen, others elated at being at the controls of their vehicles again—signed up for duty under threat of being drafted for military service, fired from their jobs without availability ships for the duration of the war, and loss of unemployment compensation.

Soldiers in complete battle dress, however, continued to ride on each vehicle, as the Army gave no indication of stepping out of the picture until absolute assurance is given that the system will operate without further disruption.

The strike crumbled after leaders of the walkout told the operators they had no other choice but to return to work, in the face of moves by the Federal authorities to restore normal operations and punish instigators of the five-day anti-Negro transit tie-up, which cost the nation five million man-hours of labor in war plants of the vast Philadelphia industrial area.

NAZI RESISANCE BEFORE PARIS MAY COLLAPSE, BELIEF

Seventh Army, one of the best units in the Hitler war machine, faced with the alternative of surrender or annihilation.

American capture of St. Briac unhinged the enemy positions along the northern coast of Brittany, and there was every sign that St. Malo would fall shortly while the German defenses at Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient weakened by the hour.

The German garrison at Lorient, Nazi U-boat base, turned in an abject request for surrender. This port had been subjected to a merciless aerial bombardment during the night.

Near St. Nazaire

Allied ground troops were less than a dozen miles from St. Nazaire whose seizure will open the Loire river to the Americans and enable swift seizure of Nantes, the leading city of Brittany.

The Mayenne river was crossed at five points, giving the Allies a new 40-mile long front for the general assault on Paris, which may find German defenses at Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient originally anticipated.

Richard Treagus, International News Service war correspondent reporting from a reconnaissance plane above the town of Vire, disclosed that the Germans were offering considerable resistance at that vital spot.

SEVENTEEN MORE JAP-SHIPS SUNK; THIRTY DAMAGED

guns of the surface units operating with the task force blasted into oblivion the town of Omura on the Bonin island of Chichi Jima.

Omura is on the north shore of Port Lloyd, Chichi Jima's best harbor.

This stab into Jap waters represents the deepest penetration by American ships into supposedly enemy-controlled seas, guarding the approaches to Tokyo, as the Bonins are but 632 miles from Japan and the Volcanos an additional 150 miles south.

Among the ships definitely sunk or damaged in the convoy which Nimitz said was "virtually wiped out" were seven warships, heaviest of which was the light cruiser left ablaze in the water after the attack by our carrier-based planes.

No mention was made of the class of ships assisting in the assault, although destruction of the island town apparently indicates they carried large caliber guns.

Six of the Jap planes destroyed were shot down in air combat while seven others were pinned to the ground and destroyed before taking to the air. Other action saw the Bonin islands of Ani Jima, Haha Jima, and Muku Jima blasted by guns of the U. S. fleet.

Two of the five barges damaged on the second day of the strike were revealed to be carrying troops. Apparently the troops were seeking to escape the blistering fire of the Americans or they may have been attempting reinforcement of the Bonin islands against an expected invasion move farther north by our forces.

U. S. FORCES IN FRANCE SWEEP TOWARD PARIS

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said the fate of the German seventh army hangs in the balance until the enemy can establish a line from which to meet the Yank onslaught.

Battle At Brest

Stiff battles developed for the great port and naval base of Brest, at the western tip of the Breton peninsula, and the port of St. Malo, on the northern coast, as the Yanks who veered off to the east swept to points within less than 140 miles of Paris.

Although there was strong opposition to the Americans near Brest and in and near St. Malo, Nazi garrisons at the southern end of the Breton peninsula gave signs of throwing in the towel and calling it quits.

Headquarters confirmed that the enemy garrison in the port of Lorient, site of U-boat pens which underwent a heavy night aerial bombardment like that visited upon Brest, asked to surrender. No further details were forthcoming immediately.

Convoy Sunk

Previously the Nazi garrison at St. Nazaire attempted to make a dash for it in two convoys, one of which met disaster when British and Canadian warships sank all seven ships. The second convoy fled back to port immediately to await another fate.

Headquarters indicated that advanced elements of the Americans were within a dozen miles of St. Nazaire, reporting that the Yanks had reached the Vaine river at various points from Rennes to the sea. The Vaine flows into the sea on the south coast about 12 miles north of St. Nazaire. The town of Redon, 25 miles above St. Nazaire, was known to be in American hands.

Mayenne River Crossed

The Mayenne river was crossed by the Americans moving eastward toward the rail center of Laval and Paris at the town of Mayenne at Laval, Houssay, Ambrières La Grande, and Chateau-Gontier. Domfront, which was reached in the crossing of the Varenne lies 20 miles north of Mayenne.

The Germans were being beaten back readily in Normandy from their withdrawal with captured and after dogged fighting, to Caen and desperate counter-attacks by the Germans on separated sectors were crushed.

Strong resistance was maintained by the Nazis in Estray, eight miles northeast of Vire, and the town was by-passed by the British Second Army forces advancing east.

Make 4,500 Sorties

Nazi strongpoints, railways, armored columns and fuel and ammunition dumps were subjected to heavy aerial bombardment with Allied aerial armadas flying 4,500 sorties against various targets yesterday.

Yank assault forces strengthened their positions in the vicinity of the large port and naval base of Brest in preparation for a siege of the Nazi-held fortress.

Combined assaults by the American First Army and the British Second Army pushed the German back at several points along the front between Vire and Caen in Normandy.

A Reuter battlefront dispatch said British infantry had crossed the Orne river on a two-mile front above Thury-Harcourt, southwest of Caen. The crossing was said to have been made in less than five miles behind the German line between May-Sur-Orne and Rocquencourt facing Canadian troops.

Assault on Brest

In the developing assault on Brest, American armored forces freed the town of Carhaix, approximately 35 miles east of the port, Yank spearheads pushing south through the center of the Breton peninsula. The Nazis from Redon, about 25 miles above the Port of St. Nazaire, from which the Nazis sought to flee by sea and lost a seven-ship convoy in the attempt to the guns of British and Canadian warships.

Another American column liberated Vannes, some 28 miles east of Lorient.

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said that other Yank units had reached the Vaine river at various points from Rennes to the sea.

The Vaine flows into the sea on the south coast of the Breton peninsula about 12 miles north of St. Nazaire.

Press Toward Paris

Columns pressing eastward in the direction of the French capital cleared the Germans from Chateau-Gontier and Houssay and swept across the Mayenne river 17 miles south of Laval. Mayenne itself has been occupied in a swift dash by motorized American infantry from Fourges.

Northward on the Normandy front Allied armored forces penetrated into the outskirts of the embattled road and rail hub of Vire, and the nearby forest of St. Sever is being cleared on the light enemy resistance still left there.

The stronghold of St. Poir was taken and two German counter-attacks in that area were smashed.

To the northeast, the high ground at Mount Pincon was seized from the Germans after heavy fighting. Between Mount Pincon and Vire, German resistance was stubborn. The Nazis put forth a strong counter attack which was repulsed.

Mount Pincon was a Neustone of the German front west of the Orne river, some four miles south of Aunay.

South of Caen, headquarters said, a local attack on the east bank of the Orne river met heavy German resistance at May-Sur-Orne.

Aiding the American drive to take Lorient, Allied night bombers heavily blasted the submarine pens there in the same manner as the U-boat bases at Brest were smashed in advance of the Yank approach to the naval base.

Other Allied aircraft hammered heavily at German-controlled rail communications leading to the battle areas, blasted armored columns near Thury-Harcourt and blew up fuel and ammunition dumps.

RUSSIAN FORCES SMASH CLOSER TO GERMAN SILESIA

hobys in addition to being vital oil production area is an important communications center on the approaches to the Carpathian mountain passes into Czechoslovakia.

The Soviet high command reported that in action all along the front from just north of Czechoslovakia to battle areas in Lithuania Russian troops had ousted the Germans from more than 170 localities.

Drive On Krakow

In the mounting drive aimed at Krakow, last major Nazi defense bastion before German Silesia, the Red army smashed the enemy from several positions in the triangular area formed by the Vistula and San rivers.

A German bridgehead on the right bank of the Vistula stretching from the confluence of the Vistula and the San to the town of Tarnobrzeg, 17 miles distant, was eliminated, an official communique said. Tarnobrzeg is situated 85 miles northeast of Krakow.

Southward, other forces driving on Krakow seized the rail town of Mielec. The drive in this area netted more than 20 other inhabited localities.

While patriot Polish forces continued to battle the Nazis inside Warsaw, the Red army tightened its Silesia lines approaching the occupied Polish capital.

Smashing ahead northwest of occupied Kaunas in Lithuania, Red army forces crossed the Dubisla river and liberated 30 towns near the East Prussian frontier, but there still was no Soviet confirmation that Russian spearheads, as earlier reported by the Nazis, had touched upon Reich soil.

Another 30 towns were retaken from the Nazis in continued offensive assaults southwest of Pskov.

established on the south bank of the Arno, with the exception of pockets of resistance remaining south of Pontassieve and west of Empoli.

No Other Changes

The communique from headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson said that there were no changes to report from the rest of the trans-penninsula battlefront.

Planes of the tactical air forces kept up relentless attacks on military objectives in northern Italy and in the battle area, and bombed rail bridges in southern France and targets in Yugoslavia.

These attacks were carried out while heavy bombers blasted rail communications and oil storage facilities in the Rhone valley of France and submarine pens at the Toulon naval base. Offensive sweeps were made over the Ploesti oil field region of Romania and the Bucharest area.

In the approximately 2,000 sorties flown 12 allied planes were lost. One German craft was destroyed.

stars will be seen most favorably in the northeastern sky between 1 a. m. (Eastern War Time) and dawn on August 13, the prediction says.

Quite a number of persons, particularly children, have been bitten by dogs during the past few weeks. Folks should remember that dogs are a little more irritable in hot weather, just like humans, and they should avoid annoying them.

Folks living along Highland avenue report a rather odd spectacle at the close of the Rainbow ball in The Cathedral. A young woman was seen wending her way up Highland avenue, holding up her long formal gown, and walking in her bare feet, while her escort trudged alongside, carrying the young woman's slippers and corage.

Residents living in the vicinity of Moody and Delaware avenues report that someone in that neighborhood has a bound which puts the "Howl of the Baskervilles" to shame with its blood-curdling howls. It can be heard almost any hour of the night, they report.

It didn't last long, but there was a little excitement on Washington street late Saturday night when one car ran into another car, and the second car ran into a third one. The only result as far as Pa. Newc could see was a broken headlight on the second car and a surprisingly large crowd that collected on the spur of the moment.

Playground Has Splendid Program

Throughout the week, numerous activities kept those who attended the west side playground, safe and happy. The pool was a thing of joy. Tuesday, a winner roast at noon, was a special attraction.

A show "Captain John Smith and Pocahontas" was enacted in costume. A Ouija board, an innovation, created much interest. A number of parents visited the playground. A family of marionettes and puppets performed for the children, also a well behaved goat, and a black cocker puppy "Mickey" belonging to Frank Johnson.

In keeping with the plan of Art Alexander, recreational director, a hobby show climaxed the week's winners were Marjory Becker, coin collection; Arson Ross, movie star collection; they received tickets to movie "Going My Way". Billy Hunter entered a colorful collection of fishing flies; Sonny Krueger, a collection of plane models; Sandra Becker, post card dating back to 1900.

Judges were Leona Sankey, Art Alexander and Geneva Walker, the latter in charge of playgrounds for the week.

D., officiated at the 6:45 o'clock ceremony which was performed in the presence of an attendance of friends that filled the church auditorium.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white faille with a pearl-embroidered yoke. Her fingertip length veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible marked with an orchid and streamers caught with white rosebuds and white sweet peas.

For the traditional 'something borrowed' she wore a pendant and bracelet of jade sent from the South Pacific by her brother, Robert L. Davis, seaman 2-c.

As maid of honor she had her sister, Miss Donna Lou Davis, who wore yellow net and taffeta with a beaded dress of yellow net that fell from a coronet of matching rosebuds. Bridesmaids were another sister, Miss Jean Davis, of Toronto, O., and Miss Marilyn Templeton. They wore gowns alike of pastel blue taffeta and net and of rose, respectively.

Murray McMakin, of Pittsburgh and East Brook, was best man. Ushers were William B. Fox and Weldon V. Zeigler, both uncles of the bride.

Appropriate wedding music and favorite selections of the bride were played by Miss Emma Wagner at the organ.

At a reception at The Castleton in the coral room following the ceremony, refreshments were served to more than 60 guests. Miss Eleanor Wallace and Miss Edwina Brett were aides.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination. On their return they will take up residence at their remodeled and newly furnished home in East Brook.

Hitler's New Purge Shows All Isn't Well

Since the disappointingly unsuccessful attempt on the life of Hitler it has been anybody's guess as to what precisely has been happening behind the German veil. Yet there have been many intimations of the steady closing of the Nazi grip on the demoralized, resentful and disheartened Army leadership.

The latest evidence is at hand in the Berlin announcement of the setting-up of a special "court of honor" to purge the military command of the Fuehrer's foes.

The army, if Berlin could be believed, "asked for it," and in the literal, not the colloquial, sense. The new court has already expelled or jailed eleven officers, including a field marshal.

But only last week Goebbels was boasting that virtually all the plotters had been wiped out, with peace and order restored in the Reich. "All's well" was his intended reassurance, but evidently all is far from well, even though the Nazis have gained the whip-hand on the army.

They would not be satisfied, of course, with a mere ousting of the anti-Nazis from their high army posts. Why the Nazis went to the trouble of establishing the elaborate "court of honor" machinery is not explained. But dismissal from the army means trial by Lord High Executioner Himmler's "people's court." So that is where the Nazi party officially comes in.

That there are millions of Nazi fanatics left, both inside and outside the army, there is no reason to doubt. The fact makes it all the plainer, declares the Philadelphia Inquirer, that we can't rely on purges, but must depend wholly on our own unremitting efforts to deliver the knockout blow to the still desperately fighting foe.

Postwar Bureaucracy

The war in Europe has now progressed to the point where we see victory ahead in the not distant future. Many plans and programs have been presented for postwar reconstruction on the war-torn continent. Many plans are being brought forward for home reconstruction too. But what many people fail to realize is that the New Deal planners at Washington are away ahead of the average citizen in that they are seeking to continue and strengthen Federal regulation through bureaucracy after the war is over. They expect to find an excuse for this in the general let-down which will come when peace is declared.

In his splendid book, "Bureaucracy Runs Amuck" by Lawrence Sullivan, a Washington newspaperman and statistician, the writer says: "While the military services are smashing through to victory our Federal bureaus and commissions in Washington are digging in for postwar permanency."

It is well to note that today the civil payroll of our government carries more than 3,300,000 men and women exclusive of all military personnel. This is one government employee to every forty-one persons in the country. In 1933 when the New Deal took charge the combined civil rolls carried only 567,000 names or about one to each 200 of our population. This growth in personnel accounts in part for the political victories which the New Deal has been rolling up at the expense of the taxpaying public. In his interesting book which is an authoritative document on bureaucracy, Mr. Sullivan among many other things points out that although the government operates the largest printing office in the world, covering 33 acres of floor space, it still buys outside printing at the rate of $10,000 a day; the publicity bureaus, outside the military and naval forces use 8,313 cameras to take pictures to inform the public of the activities of the New Deal government; one war agency published a home-maker pamphlet advising "If sheets are laundered at home use plenty of soap and water"; a Senate committee discovered at least 6,000 draft deferments in non-war agencies; the Federal telephone bill, exclusive of military calls, amounts to $33,000,000 a year; one cabinet officer is a director in 33 federally-owned corporations and business associations; since 1933 new capital invested in U. S. business investments has averaged less than 10 per cent of the pre-depression normal.

Yes, bureaucracy runs amuck, but at the same time it is planning to hold the occupied territory permanently.

'The Pacific Era'

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, who has busied himself with predictions concerning the coming century, now has settled on a brand new title. It will be the "Era of the Pacific," he declared following his Asiatic journey.

"I am convinced," he asserted, "that a main area of development after this war—new enterprise, new investment, new trade, new accomplishments—will be in the world of the North Pacific and Eastern Asia."

As evidence he submits that trade with Russia and China will keep "the factories of America busy in the days that lie ahead." And he sees this trade developing from a combination of two circumstances—improved communications through "tremendous international airlines," and the fact that both Russia and China have natural resources to carry their end of the arrangement.

The vice president is talking like a businessman. Presumably he has learned during his trip to Chungking, at least, that the inexorable forces of economics, which rush to fill markets capable of being filled, will operate in our relationship with a China revitalized by the hope of becoming a major world power.

New markets should open in Asia. But their opening requires more than opportunity. Risk capital is necessary to build the airlines. American salesmanship, inspired by faith in the power of American industry, must activate the field. And trade must build upon the twin advantages of profit to the seller and benefit to the buyer. To fully develop the Pacific era, in other words, requires the free operation of enterprise both here and in the lands across the ocean.

Peaceful Education

Some of the toughest jobs of this war will come at the end. The most essential and perhaps the most difficult, will be what highbrow statesmen and educators will probably call the "re-orientation" of the German people. Whatever the change is called, it must signify a definite turning of German youth to the pursuits of peace.

The Germans may have learned pretty much the same things that other nations have studied in their schools and colleges, but with a notable difference in method and purpose. Instruction in peaceful matters has been centered around military instruction, and the atmosphere has been warlike. Learning was not for civil values of personal development, but for the strength and glory of the state. Such discipline and environment naturally develop militarism not only in outward works, but in youthful souls. Thus fighting and conquest come to seem desirable, and the studious life is perverted from profitable learning to serve the urge of violence and conquest.

It will be difficult to rebuild the German system of education, but it will be no more difficult to fight another such war by the time the boys not killed in this one have grown sons.

Sees Difficulties In Governors' Program

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—With the broad objective of the Republican governors' conference that has just been concluded here no one could disagree.

The picture of power-hungry bureaucrats working zealously to centralize authority in Washington is largely a figment of the imagination. The bureaucrats are an effect, not a cause. The fact is that federal-bureaucratic struggles, and too often in vain, to keep up with the deep underlying causes that have resulted in the transference of power away from the states and localities to the federal government.

Any realistic effort to check the long trend toward centralization is all too the good. But it must touch basic reality to mean anything.

Take, as an example, the governors' plank on public works. It's a reasonable recommendation for planning in advance by federal state and local units. Included, however, is the following:

"When, and if, in case of national necessity, there are public works which may properly be the province of both federal and state or local governments, then grants-in-aid should be made by the federal government to states, or through them, to their local governments, without conditions which invade the authority of the state or local government."

Possible Misuse
If that means what it seems to mean, then it says that the federal government "shall dish out the money but shall have nothing to say as to how it shall be spent. The state could flagrantly misuse the money and yet, presumably, the federal government could do nothing about it.

Here in Missouri, a year or so ago, an incident occurred that illustrates this conflict. Under a federal grant-in-aid the children's bureau of the department of labor advanced money to the state for family assistance, the federal law specifying that the state officers who dispensed the money should meet certain civil service standards.

The children's bureau learned that the jobs were being handed out to deserting politicians with little or no special training. After an investigation and hearings, and in spite of political pressure, the federal money was stopped until the conditions were met.

What if no conditions had been laid down in the law? The way would have been opened for a pad-ronee grab, and other state pad-ronees might have found it advantageous to follow the example of Missouri.

Here, of course, you get down to an interesting contradiction. One of the chief reasons for lining up the governors behind the Dewey campaign as one of the principal Dewey people told me privately, was because of the great patronage that most of them wield through their appointive power.

Practical Politics
State job-holders who want to hold their jobs are going to be told to get out and work for the national ticket. This is politics on the practical side. But it hardly accords with the lofty language of the governors' 14 points.

There is, however, a deeper contradiction in the fact that an important bloc of governors was not present at this meeting at all. The Democratic governors of the southern states would have had some interesting things to say to the St. Louis conference.

South of Mason and Dixon's line a revolt against discriminatory freight rates is brewing. Many southerners who are grounded in "states' rights" have come to feel that these rates are a kind of interstate tariff to protect the industrial east from the competition of the south and the middle west.

The eastern states want to keep the present low-sided rate structure. Governor Dewey went before the interstate commerce commission two years ago to say that the differential was necessary for New York.

Even among the 26 Republican governors regional differences found expression. Montana wanted one kind of treatment from the federal government on highway aid, and New Jersey wanted another.

This is why some of the recommendations sound so thin and platitudinous. Conditions vary widely from state to state in this great country and the "area of agreement," to use Governor Dewey's phrase, is often only a pious hope.

What People Say

(International News Service)

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate, St. Louis: "I can say without hesitation that quarreling and bickering which has lasted for 12 years between the national and state governments will come to an end with the election of a Republican administration."

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, on issuing drastic manpower decrees, Washington: "The responsibility for manning our war plants is clear and unmistakable and it rests with the communities. The communities must meet the responsibility if we are to be able to finish the war without a universal service act."

Mai Gen. Philip Hayes, army supervisor of Philadelphia's truck transit system, Philadelphia: "The men and women of Philadelphia's transit lines are now working for the United States of America. They are engaged in duty of paramount importance to the progress of our military effort. They must not fail us."

Fifty-three percent of the nation's freight cars are used only for hauling coal.

POOR SHOT

Two old sailors were sitting rather uncomfortably in what evidently had been their favorite barroom. Since their last visit the old place had been completely done over in a new art style and was now filled with gay young people. Both tars fell to reminiscing on the good old days. Said one:

"I suppose it's all right, George, the new-fashioned trappings, but I miss the old spittoon."

"Yes, Jack," answered the other, "you always did."

So long as we can afford to throw away two-inch cigarette butts, we're not insolvent as individuals or as a nation.

It is pretty hard to distinguish sometimes between moral courage and a lack of nerve.

WHAT BOTHERED HIM

The story is told of the soldier-artist who ran across a quaint character wandering about outside an army camp.

"I'll give you $5.00 if you let me paint you," the soldier offered. The man hesitated, scratched his head.

"It's easy money," the artist urged, reaching for his billfold.

"That ain't no question about that," the wanderer agreed finally. "I wuz just trying to figure out how I'd get the paint off afterwards."

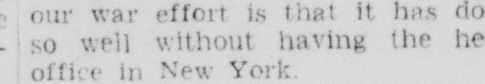

It gives a man such a mortifying shock to meet one more intelligent than himself, that most of us give thanks daily that we have not yet met that person.

When a man's wife goes away for the summer he has to fall back on the newspapers for local news.

"Lonely men in foxholes miss their dogs," says a reporter. This is especially true of the kind served with mustard.

Still, if you examine a great man's record and set down only his blunders, he seems to lack ordinary good sense.

The Jap people can't be fooled much longer. They know a pitcher isn't taken out while he is winning.

The completely self-satisfied needn't be handled carefully. They aren't "sensitive." If it doesn't occur to them that any criticism could be meant for such perfect people.

Another remarkable thing about our war effort is that it has done so well without having the head office in New York.

To prove a man's greatness, forget his office and point out things he has done which no ordinary man could have done.

Despite the speeches and bales of publicity, the election will hinge on one question: "Do you like Roosevelt or don't you?"

Some Angles On Alleged G. O. P. Slight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—THE STAGE has been reached where talk concerning Mr. Wendell Willkie's alleged grievances against the Republican convention, by his inspired newspaper friends and others eager to keep Mr. Willkie in the south, sore and surly frame of mind in which he has been since his Wisconsin defeat, has become a little silly.

WITHIN the past week, two writers, who obviously have been in personal contact with him, came forth on different days with the statement that there was not the slightest foundation for the report that Mr. Willkie, being just as disappointed in the Democratic platform as he was in the Republican, and still believing, as he said at St. Louis, that the really vital need of the country is to get rid of the New Deal administration, was now prepared to support Gov. Dewey. On the contrary, it was said, Mr. Willkie will require at least a couple of months more of examination of the candidates and their utterances before making up his mind how to vote.

IF THIS correctly reflects Mr. Willkie's feeling, he seems about to maneuver himself into an almost unprecedented and somewhat ridiculous isolation. For, if he has been unable to determine how he will cast his ballot, he will probably be the only qualified and literate voter in the United States in that condition of uncertainty. Certainly, his fluid state of mind is not shared by any of that group of sturdy friends who formed his pre-Wisconsin organization and did everything men could do to promote his fortunes. Without exception, these have all come out strong-ly for Dewey and are at work trying to elect him.

IT IS interesting that those writers who insist that Mr. Willkie will not teach a decisive lesson before autumn link this insistence with statements about the terrible way he was treated by the Republican convention. The chief, and in fact the only, count in this charge is that he was not asked to address the convention, as Mr. Hoover was asked. True, Mr. Willkie is the only living ex-President and Mr. Willkie is only one of three living who have been candidates for the Presidency. Still, it is argued, he was entitled to address the convention and it was discourteous not to ask him. That is the big grievance and it is time the bunk about it should be made clear. It isn't really a grievance at all, and Mr. Willkie has the slightest foundation for feeling "slighted."

UNDER THE circumstances, the Republican leaders would have been just feeble-minded to have extended an invitation to Mr. Willkie to "speak." Ordinarily, of course, he would have been asked. The Republicans want to win and the presence of Mr. Willkie on the platform, supporting the ticket in a strong speech, would have been fine for party prospects. But, there was not the slightest reason to believe that Mr. Willkie would support the ticket.

On the contrary, following his overwhelming defeat in the Wisconsin primaries, he did everything possible to convey the idea that he would support the ticket. He attributed his defeat solely to isolation influences, which was absurd, and he belittled all over the lot, his "conscience" and his "principles." As a result, he was built up by the press into a figure of mystery, threatening the Republican party with a bolt unless it conformed to his ideas not only as to platform and candidates but organizations as well.

IN HIS private conversations with newspapermen and others Mr. Willkie contributed to this idea and that was his pose when the convention met. Obviously, to have asked a man in such a state of mind to address the convention would have been an absurdity. He easily might have decided to denounce the candidate, the platform and the party. He might have made a general mess of the convention and inflicted irreparable damage. Certainly, he had been talking and behaving like a man capable of doing these things. One might just as well have expected the Democratic managers to ask the two living ex-Democratic Presidential candidates—John W. Davis and Alfred E. Smith, who were against a third term—to address the convention which nominated Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term.

NEITHER Mr. Davis nor Mr. Smith felt hurt because they were not asked, and Mr. Willkie had not the least ground for feeling hurt because he was not asked. The failure to ask him was not because anyone wanted to treat him with contempt nor because his support of the party was not desired. He was not asked for the very simple reason that his threatening attitude made it impossible to ask him and it is about time that this nonsense about Mr. Willkie being "slighted" ceased.

It is hard to see a ghost of an excuse to refuse support as a matter of principle or conscience, if apparently is Mr. Willkie's purpose to hold this attitude for another two months. By that time, very few will care. His inability to raise above his personal disappointment has convinced quite a number of those who formerly stood by him that they were mistaken in ever believing he had the qualities to make a good President.

Wallace May Be Party's First Choice In 1948
Hundreds Of Delegates Write Encouraging Words
Woman's Vote Big November Factor

By HELEN ESSARY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—A new presidential candidate is simmering in the air-cooled capitol. Not another presidential candidate for 1944—heavens, no!

There will be a 1948, you know, if, in the struggle to save human beings, the world is not blown to atoms within the next few years. The 1948 candidate is the man who was defeated for the vice presidential candidacy in Chicago—Henry Wallace!

For not only are the friends of Mr. Wallace not dismayed by the setback he received in the votes of the Democratic convention, on the contrary they are more certain that their hero has a large and powerful popular following.

Hundreds of letters praising Mr. Wallace have come to his office at the capitol and to his home in Des Moines. Many of the letters are from delegates to the Chicago convention who wrote that although they voted against the vice president, it was only because they were instructed to do so by their bosses. They believe in Mr. Wallace, many of such letters say, and hope that he will be a candidate for the presidency in 1948.

What happens to the defeated town if and when Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected president is an entertaining subject. Already it is understood in the event of Democratic victory, the President has offered him two posts Mr. Wallace is considering the acceptance of one.

This next bit is my own idea. Henry Wallace would make an excellent postwar governor of an occupied country. He is still a sort of frontiersman himself. He could understand the problems of harried and anxious people.

War is a stupid and bloody business, even though victory glows ahead. Sometimes I think its effect on the people left behind is more evil than on those who are actually in the combat. This unpleasant thought has been occurring lately as I have read and listened to the reports of our successes.

"We had a brilliant triumph that day," remarks a general at his press conference. "We killed 1,986 of the enemy." (Continued on Page Seven)

The World and the Mud Puddles

A BREAKING POINT—PERHAPS

The 1944 Presidential Campaign finds the South, particularly that part of it that always has been regarded as "solid" in a quandary. It has a political transformation to undergo. It is a Republican Party, but at the same time it finds itself compelled to hold its nose if it accepts the steamroller tactics of the New Deal element that has captured the Democratic Party.

The South, as it recounts its lack of blessings at the hands of the Federal government—and it recounts them continuously—becomes a graphic example of a people who blindly follow a party label and who have a political transformation in which affect governmental principles. One of the proud boasts of a great many Southerners, for the last half century, has been, "I'd vote for a yellow dog, if he were a Democrat, rather than for a Republican." As a result of this attitude, the two-party system virtually is non-existent in the so-called "solid" South.

Yet, all the while, the South complains that it receives less than the consideration due it from the Federal government in Washington. Politically, one does not have to search far to find the reason. The Democratic administrations feel that they can count upon the South, regardless of what their policies may be, while the Republicans feel that it is useless to make overtures to that region since they can expect no support in return. As a natural result, the South has lagged behind much of the rest of the country in development, all because of the slavish adherence to a party label that long since has become meaningless.

The Democratic Party was founded largely upon the principle of States' Rights. This was done in an effort to prevent the Federal Government from encroaching upon the constitutional powers of the individual States. After the close of the Civil War, when administrators were being sent into the southern States from the north to occupy Federal offices the South felt the indignity keenly and there arose a sharp feeling of distrust which found expression in virtually a unanimous adherence to the Democratic Party. For many years and even today in many of the "solid" States, no Republican ticket is regarded merely as a gesture designed to become a matter of record.

But the last eleven years have (Continued on Page Seven)

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

When Mrs. Genevieve P. Stubbs of Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., reads this, I hope she will be quite well again.

When she wrote me she was sick in bed, "padded precariously on a pile of magazines."

On an glad of course, that she subscribes to her paper "only on account of your articles" and that she clips them and puts them in a scrap book.

But the thing that amused me most in her clever letter was "funny how some guys can sling words together that makes you feel they are personal friends. How lost would he be without a pencil or pen when you get the whim to put your thoughts on paper."

Yes, my dear Genevieve, we've very much lost without pencils or pens.

But pencils and pens aren't worth the stuff of which they are made unless they are guided by a mind that has something to feel.

Slipping words isn't what you like about my column, and it isn't what I like about my favorite writers.

Your letter wasn't a product of your pencil any more than the beauties of nature you enjoy are the product of the gas station that fills the tank of your automobile.

Have Lovely Thoughts

You write your letters because you have lovely thoughts in your heart.

I write my column because I like the world and the people in it and because I think that down deep we are all kindly and decent and neighborly and peaceful.

The trouble is that so many people are afraid to be sincere and simple and soft-hearted.

They think that to be tough is a sign of strength, and that to enjoy flowers and nature and music and art is a man has to be a sort of Ferdinand Bull.

I don't care what people think. And don't you care either.

The very people about whose good opinion you care most are not by any means the most watchful.

Your real friends take you as you are. If you have to put on a lot of show for them and watch your P's and Q's to impress them, they are not friends of yours.

How did I come to talk about all this when I really wanted to write about pens and pencils?

Well, it just goes to show that it isn't the pencil that does the talking but what's in your heart and in your head!

CHILD'S HELP IN GARDEN

As soon as the child can toddle, he can learn a great deal from the victory garden. He first needs to learn not to step where seeds have been planted nor on the plants and flowers nor to pull them up. Quiet suggestions might suffice. "How To Train The Tot The Meaning Of No" may be had for postage in a self-addressed envelope stamped with three cents.

Gradually he can learn what are the weeds to be pulled out and the plants to be preserved, though this is not always easy for adults. I have noted with pleasure that my little granddaughter, two, has gained information in this direction

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Latin American nations were understood today to be resentful of being excluded from the "big four" conference, which begins next Monday in Washington, to set up a world peace organization.

Widespread alarm was reported in these countries over the prospect of a new world created by four powers, including Russia, which is still viewed with distrust in Latin America. Most Latin American nations have not recognized the Soviet government and have no relations with it.

China Is Out
Furthermore, reports point out that one member of the "big four"—China—will not sit in on the initial discussions because of Russia's desire to preserve her neutrality with Japan. Thus, the conference is restricted to three powers—Great Britain, the United States and Russia.

Secretary of State Hull has attempted to meet Latin American objections by a statement to the press in which he warmly championed the rights of small nations and reviewed the record of the United States as their defender.

This came in response to apprehensions from another quarter. At that time, Netherlands Foreign Minister Van Krefkens had publicly criticized the announced plan for an international conference because the small powers were excluded.

Miss Marion McConnell gave an interesting report of the Y. T. C. camp at Grantham. Miss Caroline McElwain entertained with a trumpet solo, "The Stranger of Galilee." A talk on the subject "Advance" or "Go Forward" was given by Mrs. Edith Updegraff.

Miss Margaret Peebles chose as her subject "The Garden of Life." Mrs. Helen Cameron conducted a ribbon tying exercise and two more children were dedicated to the cause of temperance.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Edith Updegraff. Mrs. Mable McElwain was assisted in serving refreshments by Dorothy and Jean Kildoo, Mildred and Carolyn McElwain and Mrs. Sara Burton.

Mrs. Helen Kildoo will be hostess to the members of the union at her home for their regular meeting Thursday afternoon, August 10.

human beings short of money. Back in '29 we said prosperity would last forever. It didn't. In 1933 we said depression was here to stay. It wasn't. Now we say money will continue to come "easy". It won't. Wise men and women face the facts and put some of today's earnings into a bank account. They know they have everything to gain and nothing to lose by being farsighted and thrifty.

Guam Natives Are Rejoicing At U. S. Success

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

Guam, Aug. 1.—(Delayed)—(Via Navy Radio)—Out of the red mud of Guam's hills streamed people today, speaking the word "America" more reverently, it seemed, than it had ever been spoken before.

They came down barefooted, muddy, tired and hungry, but they came down smiling, happy to be the first American nationals reclaimed from Japanese rule.

In any other setting the people's words would have sounded sentimental. A native woman in a green dress slushed along through the mud and said singing "Happy days are here... I'll never forget the happy day" making up the tune as she went along.

"God Bless America"

In the midst of a conversation, a 20-year-old boy abruptly broke into a full rendition of "God Bless America" in a pleasant voice, a performance which would have been as incongruous as the songs they used to break haphazardly into the old movie musicals, if this hadn't been Guam. This being Guam, I buried my face in my notebook to hide my emotion.

It was an awesome scene at the junction of the beach road with the road winding into the hills from which the natives came. For hours people came down the road carrying all their possessions in little bags, on their shoulders, on their heads, or maybe on an occasional canbaco, a water buffalo-type pack animal.

At this junction they gathered in the rain a few finding shelter in what's left of Manuel Tahalles' old ranch house. Manuel patted a rafter in the house and beamed.

Wave American Flags

Every native waved and spoke to every soldier and marine and many waved dime store American flags, saved during the 31-months of Jap occupation.

They proudly sang their most popular song, "Sam, Sam, dear old Uncle Sam, won't you please come back to Guam."

One man had a full-sized American which his niece, a dressmaker, had sewn into a sofa pillow along with a few treasured papers.

For some young people the first reaction on moving from their camp in the hills through the lines of Col. Stephen Hamilton's soldiers was the thought that now they could get ice cream again.

Others had tears of happiness in their eyes like the 23-year-old girl who gave me a heartfelt "God bless you" after a brief conversation.

Many felt like the young fisherman who listened to Commander John B. Cooke, former California assemblyman from Ventura, tell of the Americans bringing food for the people, seeds for the farmers and lines for the fishermen.

This fisherman grinned from ear to ear and laughingly said:

"That's what we want."

enemy. Our record of destruction is also splendid. We were able to set 598 industrial plants on fire, and demolish 11 towns. Of course our own losses in men and machines was noticeable but with good luck and further good fighting we expect to increase the loss of life and the destruction of the enemy."

Sounds a little like the story of a football game when play by play advances and defeats are called over the loud speakers. "... First down and 20 yards to go..." Exquisitely sensitive are human beings when given a chance to expose their own lovely natures.

In New York recently at Republican national committee headquarters at the Roosevelt hotel I found those Washington favorites, Miss Marian Martin and Mrs. Anne Wheaton, running their women's division with skill and optimism.

There were a few moments after the last Republican convention when it seemed possible that Miss Martin and Mrs. Wheaton might be sacrificed to the shortsightedness of certain Republican bosses. Miss Martin is one of the ablest members of the Republican party—regardless of gender. It was obvious to those on the inside of the convention meetings that she was getting far less co-operation than she needed and about a hundred times less than was good for the Republican vote in November. Mrs. Wheaton, publicity director for women, was also handicapped by certain Republicans.

When Herbert Brownell Jr. was made national chairman by Governor Tom Dewey, Miss Martin promptly received the support she needed. She is now assistant national chairman and is called in to advise at all party councils. Mrs. Wheaton is being given the assistance that publicity chairmen need. The two ladies have come into their own. It's a becoming role to them. They look rather alike, with white hair, bright smiles and pretty faces. Such recognition of experience and ability is indeed necessary if the Republicans hope to win. The woman vote is important as never before. It needs to be garnered as thoroughly and as promptly as possible by both parties. The ballots of 44 million women may swing the election—especially since there are six million men of voting age overseas.

THE WORLD AND THE MUD PUZZLES

seen the platform, the teachings, the traditional philosophy of the Democratic Party reversed. It no longer is the Party emphasizing States Rights. Under its administration the Federal government has become more powerful than many monarchies. Under the control of the New Deal element within it, the Democratic Party which aroused the enthusiasm and blind loyalty of the "solid" South, has ceased to exist. Step by step it has ignored or trampled upon State Rights until today almost every State, and even the counties and municipalities, are dependent upon the favors of the Federal administration for the right to even maintain a token form of regional or local government.

There have been signs of late that the South is becoming acutely aware of this situation, and the scattered revolts that have broken out indicate that a growing number of voters are becoming restless. To what extent these incipient revolts, notably, the one in Texas, may affect the outcome of the November election is, of course, problematical.

Whatever course they may take, it is becoming increasingly apparent to all that the South this year has its greatest opportunity to aid its own States and others as well in the recapture of their rights and constitutional prerogatives from a Federal administration that has gone far down the road toward collectivism and political tyranny. They can do it by breaking the strangle hold of the New Dealers upon their own Party, and they can do this only by breaking their traditional custom of following a party line.

The South has never been tolerant of tyranny, which makes it increasingly difficult to understand why it has continued to assent to conditions which have aroused so many outbreaks of dissatisfaction. It has the opportunity this year to recapture the Party to which it has given undivided loyalty for more than half a century. In so doing, it must strip the New Deal element of the power it wields. In so doing, the South will not be deserting its Party. The men who have usurped the leadership of the Democratic Party have deserted the South.

Principal Great Lakes cargoes are listed by Holzborn in the following order: Iron ore, grain, coal, petroleum and petroleum products. An Ore & Coal Exchange report bears out the ODT official's statements regarding increased coal tonnage handled by Great Lakes boats this year. Through June 23 vessels on Lake Erie carried a total of 25,155,231 tons of cargo soft coal as against 18,713,418 in the same period of 1943; 22,729,196 in 1942 and 19,188,211 in 1941.

This year's gain over 1943 is approximately 6,500,000 tons. For the entire 1943 season Lake Erie bituminous shipments averaged 45,059,324 net tons. A 54,000,000-ton season is anticipated for the same lake this season.

The current season's increase over 1943 would be about 8,000,000 tons, of which it may be considered that 6,500,000 are already accounted for.

Health Talks By DR. W. A. WOMER City Health Superintendent

WATER CRESS
Water cress is strong on vitamins. It has a sharp peppery taste. It helps to keep the digestive juices on the job.

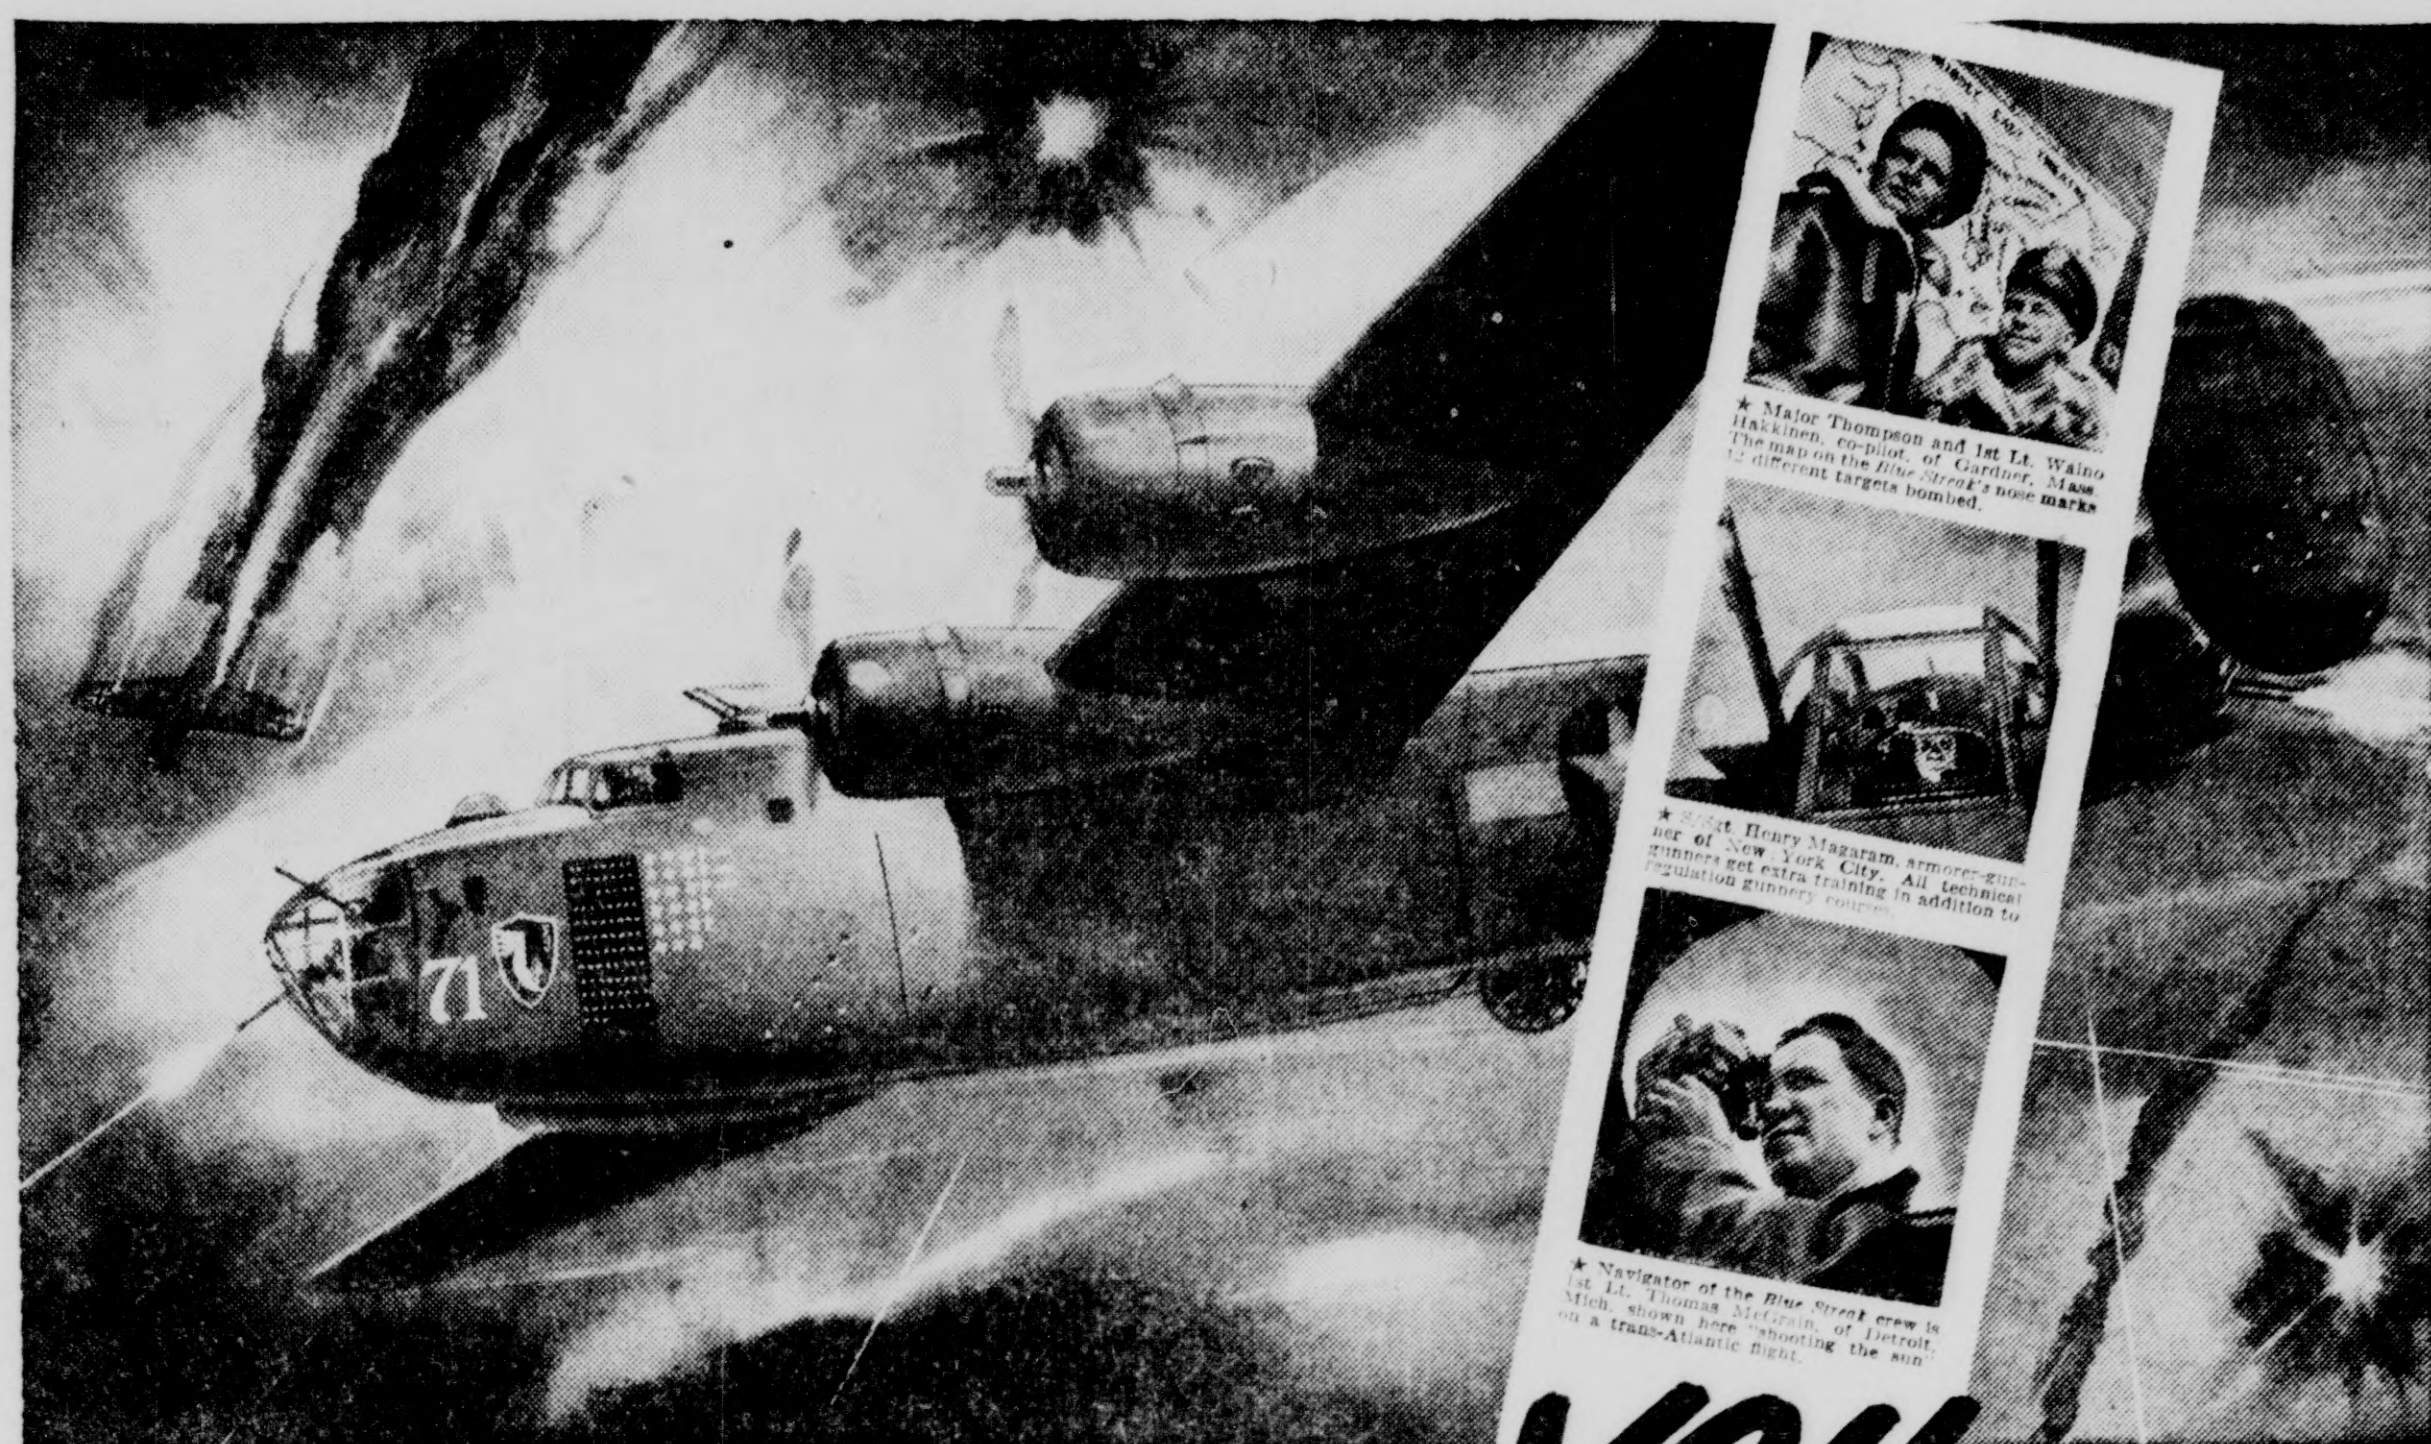

The nice green color looks good on the table. You seem to hear the sparkling spring water gurgling over the pebbles. You seem to see the pretty green leaves shining in the sunlight.

Water cress seems to make other things taste better. It gives a little kick to a meal. It makes a sandwich fit for a king.

HOMING PIGEON WON'T GO HOME

BOLIVAR, Pa.—(INS)—Mr. and Mrs. Mike Antonio have become the possessors of a homing pigeon that won't go home. "He isn't sick and he eats well," they complain.

French traders reached what is now Indiana in the early 18th century. At their post, Vincennes, established about 1732 grew up the first permanent settlement in the state.

THERE'S A PLACE FOR YOU ON THIS TEAM!

The Blue Streak, a B-24 Liberator, was one of the greatest bombers that ever climbed into the sky.

She flew 110 missions... 300,000 miles... over Germany, Italy, Roumania, Greece, Austria, Africa, Sicily.

Her air combat crews sank a Nazi freighter off Crete... blew up a tanker at Candia... sent a destroyer to the bottom of Suda Bay.

They shot down 23 German and Italian fighters... dropped half-a-million pounds of bombs... won the Distinguished Unit Badge and countless individual decorations for gallantry in action.

Yet in all her battles in enemy skies, not a man in any of her crews was ever wounded!

Ask her pilot, Maj. Ralph P. Thompson, of Columbus, O., how she managed to roll up such a record, and he'll tell you: "Because there were no individual stars."

on her crew. We flew her and fought her as a team... gunners, navigator, bombardier, and pilot, all working together to win.

"And that's the thing any young fellow—who wants to win his wings in the AAF—should keep uppermost in his mind..."

"You're on a team in the AAF... from your first day of training until you get up there in action. And it's a team that's never been stopped... that never will be stopped... the greatest team in the world!"

Today, the AAF is writing history.

Liberators and Fortresses are blacking out the skies over Germany. Japan is already beginning to feel the awful power of the Superfortress. Swarms of heavy bombers, medium bombers, light bombers and fighters are spearheading the attack on every front.

Today—more than ever before—there's a place for you on this great AAF team.

If you are 17... if you want action, adventure... the finest, most thorough training any flying man ever had... an opportunity to make a career in aviation after the war...

Then go to your nearest AAF Examining Board and see if you can qualify for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve... with an opportunity to win your wings as gunner, navigator, bombardier or pilot in the AAF... the "greatest team in the world!"

Reports Record Tonnage Moving Over Great Lakes

ASHTABULA, Aug. 7.—Growing war-time importance of the nation's inland waterways is stressed by Ernst Holzborn, of the Office of Defense Transportation, who states that the largest water-borne tonnage in history is now moving through the Great Lakes, the Mississippi River and other major inland routes.

"Due to the increased tempo of war and filling the nation's demand for vital munitions," he explains, "the water tonnage for the current year bids fair to leave the 1942 and 1943 figures far behind."

Principal Great Lakes cargoes are listed by Holzborn in the following order: Iron ore, grain, coal, petroleum and petroleum products. An Ore & Coal Exchange report bears out the ODT official's statements regarding increased coal tonnage handled by Great Lakes boats this year. Harvesting Produce

At about that age my father brought home a new hoe and he showed me how to use it. "You work too hard at it, Garry," he said. "Don't stoop down, stand up. Hold the hoe this way" — so that the end of the handle came near my shoulder. He also taught me it is easier and better to cover small weeds with dirt than to dig them out. This certainly made hoeing corn and potatoes more effective — a fact I capitalize to this day.

Children old enough to help gather fruit and vegetables should be shown how to pick beans and peas, for example, without harming the stalk; how to avoid stepping on vines and to avoid picking them during the heat of the day, and beans when it is wet.

Calls At Library For Maps, Atlases

New Maps At Public Library Slake
Patrons' Curiosity About Cathedrals, Islands, Etc.

As the war spreads over new world fronts New Castle citizens are becoming more and more map conscious. "Has the library a large-scale map of Guam?" "Is this island one of the Marshall Islands group?" "Can you locate the cathedral of such and such for me?" and similar questions are frequently asked, at the public library.

In the main hall of the library is displayed a large world map, showing the progress of the war on all fronts as well as other news of interest at home. A new map comes each week with all the news briefly sketched and corresponding numericals indicating on the map the location of the action or the event. It attracts considerable attention from the library patrons.

To assist those who wish to try to locate certain positions, some for personal reasons, the library has acquired several new atlases. For reference use only are Richard E. Harrison's Look at the World, with text by the editors of Fortune magazine; and War Atlas for Americans. There is a copy of the latter book at each of the branch libraries.

Both books were published in 1944. An older book, Fry's War Atlas, is useful also. These books are all in frequent use.

Schools Report 1134 Quarantine Cases

Measles Most Common On 1943-44
Health Record, According To Medical Inspector

Last year's school health records show the same run of diseases that school health records almost always do—the usual mumps and measles and chicken pox.

Quarantinable contagious diseases amounted to 1134 cases during the 1943-44 term, with non-quarantinable contagious diseases coming to a total of 465, according to the report of Medical Inspector A. A. Newmark.

One hundred and forty-eight other children were excluded by the medical inspector on suspicion of infectious diseases. Diphtheria-Tetanus toxoid was given to 954 children, 482 of whom completed the series.

The inspector was called to the schools 105 times because of sickness and injuries, besides giving 4,522 annual inspections for defects, and 57 brief classroom inspections for contagious diseases.

Of the quarantinable diseases there were 834 cases of measles; 50 cases of German measles; 188 of chicken pox; 30 of whooping cough; 21 of mumps; and 11 of scarlet fever.

Non-quarantinable diseases were reported as follows: 143 cases of pediculosis; 140 of "pink eye"; 92 of impetigo; 85 of ringworm; and five of scabies.

American People Apathetic, Three New Books Charge

Three recent books—Abend's My Life in China, Stowe's They Shall Not Sleep and Lippman's United States Foreign Policy—accuse the American people of apathy toward and lack of knowledge of world affairs, according to Miss Alice Sterling, librarian.

These books are in the public library as well as many other books on world affairs. New Castle people "may be exceptional but books of this type have a large circulation at the library."

Here are some you may have overlooked:

Argentine Diary, Ray Josephs. Time for Decision, Sumner Welles. Postwar Plans of the United Nations, L. L. Lorwin.

Pennsy Installs Train Telephones

Intertrain Communication System
To Be Installed On Pittsburgh-Harrisburg Line

Train to train, and train to tower telephone communication, increasing the efficiency and safety of the railroad, is being installed on the 245 miles of the Pennsylvania line between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg. LeRoy Simcoke, chief clerk of the Pennsylvania E. and A. Division announced today.

Towermen in wayside towers can talk over the telephone with train crews many miles distant, while on freight trains, the conductor in the cabin car and the engineer in the locomotive cab may talk to each other at will and the crew of one train may communicate with the crew of another several miles distant. On passenger trains, the telephone system will be installed on the locomotives only.

The train telephone uses high electric currents, transmitted by induction to the tracks.

Similar to the tracks, it has been an experimental use since June, 1942, on the Belvidere-Delaware Branch in northern New Jersey. Costing over $1,000,000 to install on the Pittsburgh-Harrisburg line, the telephone will mean no change in operating rules governing the movement of trains on which it will be used, Mr. Simcoke said.

Rainbow Grand Assembly Ends

Sessions Are Concluded
With Confering Of Degrees, Banquet, And Ball Saturday Eve.

PITTSBURGH GETS NEXT SESSIONS

Sessions of the Pennsylvania Grand Assembly of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls were brought to a close Saturday, with the grand banquet, conferring of the Grand Cross of Color degree and grand ball on Saturday evening. While rain fell throughout the evening, it failed to dampen the spirits of the young women who were winding up a glorious three-day meeting, and they braved the elements to get to the Cathedral, where the sessions have been held.

Miss Eleanor McKibben, worthy advisor of New Castle Assembly, presided as toastmaster at the banquet. As the guests assembled for the dinner the lights were darkened and then a spotlight was thrown on a globe in the center of the banquet space while Mrs. W. P. Felch sang "When the Lights Go On Again All Over the World".

Gifts Presented

Miss McKibben called on Miss Sarah C. Wilson, retiring grand worthy advisor. Dad George N. Clark, supreme inspector, and Mrs. P. F. Urey, district deputy, for short addresses. Miss Wilson and Mr. Clark were presented with gifts from the New Castle Assembly, the presentation being made in a most unique manner by Misses Marie Olsen and Marsten Whieldon, who sang a duet number, a parody on "My Sister and I", dressed as Dutch girl and boy. Miss Wilson and Mr. Clark responded most graciously. In addition, Miss Wilson was presented with a gift from her retiring group of officers, the presentation being made by Miss Adele Antis, Grand Sister of Hope, of Pittsburgh. The attendance cup was presented to Allen Memorial Assembly of Philadelphia, which had the largest number of delegates who traveled the longest distance to get here.

At Pittsburgh Next

Pittsburgh has been chosen as the location for next year's Grand Assembly session, it was announced by Supreme Inspector Clark.

The New Castle committee responsible for the success of the fine Grand Assembly meeting was composed of District Deputy Mrs. F. F. Urey; chairman, Mrs. Charles E. Allen; first vice chairman, Mrs. L. A. Wygant, who took over the reins and carried plans to a successful conclusion when illness during the past few weeks prevented Mrs. Allen from being active.

In addition, the following members of the advisory board had charge of the various activities and carried them to a successful conclusion, assisted by over 100 members of the local assembly:

Mrs. P. H. Bridenbaugh, Mrs. Vennor Bright, Miss Mable Campbell, Mrs. John L. Covert, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Doerr, Miss Bessie Durant, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. DeArment, Mr. and Mrs. Howard O. Woman Fatally Stabbed In Park At Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Police today sought a heavy-set Negro in connection with the murder of a 35-year-old woman architect who was stabbed through the heart in a daylight attack in Washington's popular Rock Creek park.

The woman, identified as Miss Frances N. Erickson, an employee in the offices of Saarinen and Swanson, Washington architects, died in the arms of a park policeman yesterday after gasping out a story of an attack by a negro purse-snatcher.

Miss Erickson, her blood-stained clothes in shreds, staggered from the bushes beneath the Q street bridge and collapsed at the feet of an army lieutenant and his girl companion who immediately summoned motorcycle policeman H. Ralph Pearson.

Pearson quoted Miss Erickson as saying that a heavy-set negro leaped at her from the bushes and pulled out a long-bladed knife when she resisted him. She had been stabbed once through the heart and had cuts on her left hand and wrist, and her purse was missing. She denied being criminally attacked.

Yanks Speed Equals Best Of Soviet Gains

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Speed of the American fanout in cutting off Brittany in a single week was believed today to have equaled the fastest Red army gains in any seven days since Stalingrad.

From the offensive's start July 25 along the St. Lo-Periers road the Americans covered the 31 miles to Avranches by July 31, averaging five miles a day.

Then the pace rocketed to an average of 30 miles a day from the Avranches breakthrough on August 1 to reach Brest 150 miles away; 15 miles a day south from Avranches to the Loire river and at least 7½ miles daily in spreading out southeast to Mayenne, Laval and Chateau Gontier.

Fuel Oil Warning Is Sounded By ODT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson today warned householders, and all others needing fuel oil for the fall and winter months, to lay in a supply now "while deliveries can still be made."

Johnson explained that the shortage of transportation facilities and the lack of heavy duty tires have combined to create a national crisis in petroleum movements.

Used-Car Black Market Is Feared

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The Pennsylvania Automotive Association today warned against the possibility of a serious black market in used cars.

An association survey disclosed that automobile dealers are almost unanimously opposed to the used-car rationing because it was felt that there may be new cars on the market again next year. Legitimate dealers complained that many private used-car sales were transacted at above-ceiling prices.

Speed Of Yank Drive Baffling To Nazi Troops

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN BRITAIN, France, Aug. 6.—(Despatched)—American armored forces maintained non-stop drives through Brittany today, chopping forward in so many directions simultaneously that the German army did not know which way to turn.

Scattered and fleeing Nazi units repeatedly blundered back into the paths of the American ramparts and were cut down.

With super speed, the Americans dashing through the Breton peninsula and eastward in the direction of Paris raced by the remains of German tank and motor columns which resembled heaps of old scrap iron piled on the roadides.

Record Assault
An American infantry unit staged a record assault down 45 miles of roadway Saturday from around Fougères into Mayenne within 10 hours as part of the drive headed for Le Mans and Paris.

The infantry dash equalled some of the best records scored by armored spearheads in the past week.

Piling into trucks, the seasoned Yank outfit over-rode two points of resistance and got to Mayenne before the Germans were aware of what had hit them. American casualties were slight.

By Sunday the French went normally about the town, laughing and getting acquainted with the Americans.

Swinging back from an effort to crash through into the port of Brest by armored car, this correspondent met plucky units which took Mayenne.

Race To Mayenne
Capt. Ivan Schock, of Berkeley, Cal.; Capt. Jim MacNamara, of Hollywood, and Sgt. Robert Mitchell, of Little Rock, Ark., told the story of the race to Mayenne, which was scarcely damaged by the war.

Said MacNamara: "The Germans were caught flat-footed. Our outfit went so fast we picked up a number of German cars in Mayenne during the night loaded with Germans coming into town to spend the night after a day afield elsewhere."

Capt. Schock said the Germans had abandoned the town, which had well-out trench and gun positions, indicating an earlier intention to defend it heavily street by street.

This American version of the blitz began at 8 a. m. Saturday and went forward without opposition until it hit the village of Enne where German 88 millimeter guns knocked out two of our reconnaissance cars. The guns were then over-ridden.

The Germans were blissfully unaware of this oncoming spearhead and did not even have a super posted en route to Mayenne.

By 10 p. m. Mayenne was occupied.

"Then the fun began," said Sgt. Mitchell. "We placed road blocks outside Mayenne and soon German cars with Germans in a hurry to get to restaurants came bustling through and got the surprise of their lives."

Some 30 Germans were killed and 70 captured, with none of the latter even now understanding what happened.

Germans Claim Soviet Attacks Were Repulsed
LONDON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The German high command claimed today that Soviet attacks along the eastern front had been repulsed and in some cases driven back.

An attempted breakthrough was frustrated north of Niemen, the communiqué alleged; also north-east of Baranov.

A Berlin military spokesman, however, admitted further Nazi withdrawal near the East Prussian border. "The defense lines were pushed back some miles," he said.

Urges More War Activities For U. S. Children

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Claiming that children thrive when placed in positions of responsibility, Dr. Winona L. Morgan of the Pennsylvania State college today urged community leaders and parents to plan more extensive war activities for American youth.

"The war has proved," she said, "that children like to be a part of community life. Especially in foreign countries, children have been given greater responsibility and have proved themselves capable of measuring up to it."

Dr. Morgan, who is the newly-appointed director of the college nursery school, feels the average American family expects too little of its children, giving them everything and asking little in return. It's unfair to children, she explained, to pamper them and then suddenly expect them to behave like mature adults.

"Children like to feel useful," she explained. "Giving them opportunities to aid in family or community projects appeals to their sense of importance, adventure, and excitement. It expressed the belief that community-sponsored war projects would help counteract teenage war jitters, and eliminate much of our juvenile delinquency."

HARRISBURG, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Capitol Hill is in the midst of the summer doldrums and few key officials can be found while vacation schedules have stripped offices of most employees. Although work has slackened, it will spur shortly after Labor Day when full forces are maintained. Politicians, too, have succumbed to the listlessness and appeared to have disappeared from the scene but the first week in September will see them starting the ball rolling for state and national elections. The Democrats determined to retain their power and Republicans equally determined to carry the state in a presidential election for the first time in 12 years.

Truck Drivers In Omaha On Strike
OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Omaha's truck terminals were idle today as the result of a strike by truck drivers who completed their walkout over the weekend.

M. M. Krupinsky, of Omaha, an official of the Midwest Operators Association, said today that a planned "shut-out" today was not necessary since the drivers failed to show up for their runs.

STEELMAKING RISES In Spite Of Heat
CLEVELAND, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Despite manpower shortages, hot weather and the need for equipment repair, steelmaking went up one per cent last week, reaching 97 per cent of capacity, instead of showing a seven to eight per cent drop as predicted for the third quarter, the magazine Steel reported today.

Urges More War Activities For U. S. Children

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Claiming that children thrive when placed in positions of responsibility, Dr. Winona L. Morgan of the Pennsylvania State college today urged community leaders and parents to plan more extensive war activities for American youth.

"The war has proved," she said, "that children like to be a part of community life. Especially in foreign countries, children have been given greater responsibility and have proved themselves capable of measuring up to it."

Dr. Morgan, who is the newly-appointed director of the college nursery school, feels the average American family expects too little of its children, giving them everything and asking little in return. It's unfair to children, she explained, to pamper them and then suddenly expect them to behave like mature adults.

"Children like to feel useful," she explained. "Giving them opportunities to aid in family or community projects appeals to their sense of importance, adventure, and excitement. It expressed the belief that community-sponsored war projects would help counteract teenage war jitters, and eliminate much of our juvenile delinquency."

Says U. S. Should Obtain Islands To Guard Nation

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Sen. Kenneth McKellar, (D. Tenn.), proposed today that the United States acquire from Great Britain, France, China and other nations strategic islands in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans "to make this nation bombproof."

McKellar, who will become dean of the Senate next January, declared that "islands must be obtained in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans to make the United States safe from another attack."

"We must not be caught unprepared again, as we were this time," he asserted.

McKellar said congressional action would be necessary in many instances. As acting chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, the Tennesseean would be expected to play an important role in passing upon the necessary funds which might be required to carry through such a transaction.

Proposals

1. That the United States retain possession after the war of conquered Japanese islands in the Pacific, such as the Marshalls and Marianas.

2. That Formosa, off the coast of China, be obtained to protect the Philippines.

3. That the Galapagos islands be acquired from Ecuador and various Caribbean sea islands from Britain and France, among them Martinique, to act as a shield for the protection of the Panama canal.

4. That an "arrangement" be made for permanent American control over Bermuda, to safeguard the eastern coast of the United States.

5. That Dakar, French West African stronghold, be made a "free city."

"I feel that some arrangements could be made with our friends to obtain islands which we do not see from the Japanese," McKellar said. "I don't think Great Britain would object. Formosa, for example, would be the best place from which to protect the Philippines. What ever is necessary should be done to make this country bombproof."

McKellar said the proposal, which he may later outline to the Senate, did not contemplate making the islands integral parts of this country, but merely "outposts."

Detroit Workers Return To Jobs

DETROIT, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Production at five Chevrolet gear and axle plants, shut up for 11 days by a strike of 7,000 employees, was resumed today after the workers voted to return to work.

Ninety-eight per cent of 1,800 members of local 235, UAW-CIO, who held a mass meeting Sunday were in favor of ending their walk-out.

Tension in the strike situation was eased when the employees learned their local president, Nestor B. Dessey, and nine other ousted officers were reinstated by the War Labor Board if the dispute were settled.

Detroit's production scene, however, was still marred by one other unsettled strike. One thousand striking employees of the Great Grinding Machine company voted at the meeting Sunday to remain off their jobs until the WLB adjusted their accumulated grievances.

GARRISON AT LORIENT SEEKS TO SURRENDER

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN BRITAIN, France, Aug. 7.—(Delayed)—The entire German garrison at the submarine base of Lorient sent a message to an American armored force bearing down on the port that they desired to surrender forthwith, army sources, announced today.

A similar message was made known to an American spearhead west of Dinan where the Germans specified they were unwilling to surrender to the French.

Pushing down from Dinan, one unit scored an advance of 25 miles toward St. Brievic while a unit proceeding from Vannes toward Lorient was only 25 miles distant.

Yank forces battling for St. Malo regained ground against heavy resistance and reached to within four miles south of that port.

Some miles south of Rennes, a column of 1,200 Germans requested an American armored group to accept their surrender, but the commander told them he was "too busy to bother" and instructed them to proceed along in formation until they were accommodated some place.

The general drive eastward in the direction of Le Mans gained momentum during the day, while mopping up between the Mayenne river and back as far as Mayenne was underway along a front stretching southward to a point east of Laval.

The Lorient development, if successfully pursued, seals the Brest peninsula.

No change in the situation at Brest was reported.

Pvt. Conti writes that he is recovering from his injuries nicely. In serving since June, 1942, he has been overseas since March. Two brothers are also in service, Pvt. Robert Conti in Australia and Pvt. Louis Conti in France.

Pfc. C. W. Glenn Wounded In France

Pfc. Chester W. Glenn, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Glenn of R. D. 3, was wounded in France on July 14 and is now recovering in a hospital in England. The extent of his wounds is not known but in a letter he states that a shell exploded about three yards ahead of him and that he received a number of shrapnel wounds.

He has received the Purple Heart medal.

Pfc. Glenn went overseas last May. He has been in service since February 1943.

RELIEF PAYMENTS
Showing a slight increase over last week, direct relief payments to needy residents of Lawrence county during the week ending August 4 amounted to $758, announced State Treasurer G. Harold Wagner today.

War Veteran Is Drowned Saturday In Slippery Rock

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Aug. 7.—A 30-year-old bomber and gunner who came through 31 missions over occupied Europe and Germany unscathed and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, drowned Saturday when his canoe overturned in Slippery Rock creek.

Sgt. Andrew Galson of Lyndora was visiting his sister, Mrs. Richard Blase, at Slippery Rock park when he decided to take a canoe ride. Shortly afterwards, John O'Brien of Butler, who was at Mrs. Blase's home, heard the soldier cry for help.

Rushing to the creek, O'Brien found the overturned canoe but found no trace of Galson. The Slippery Rock fire department was summoned and found the body about an hour and a half later.

Sgt. Galson was a crew member of the "Little Boy Blue" which had a remarkable record against the Germans. He also held the air medal with four oak leaf clusters.

The soldier's family said he had volunteered to return to the fighting front at the expiration of his furlough.

Governor Dewey Returns To Albany To Face Problems

Republican Candidate To Meet New Jersey Governor On Wednesday

By LEO W. O'BRIEN
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)
PAULING, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey headed back to Albany today to handle a political problem in his home state which may have an important bearing on the outcome of the November presidential election.

Members of the Republican state committee, meeting in Albany tomorrow to nominate candidates for U. S. senator and associate judge of the court of appeals, are anxious to choose from the long list of aspirants nominees who can best help Governor Dewey win New York's 47 electoral votes.

The Republican presidential candidate is not attempting to dictate the committee selections, but GOP leaders themselves want to be guided by his choice. Because of that feeling, Governor Dewey is expected to tell the leaders later today which senatorial candidate he believes will enhance the chances of the Dewey-Bricker ticket in the state.

The nominee chosen will enter the lists against the veteran Democratic Senator Robert F. Wagner, who has strong labor backing. Some Republican leaders believe, however, that Wagner will be easy to defeat because, while he and President Roosevelt will do equally well with the labor vote, Wagner will not attract the support of a number of voters who might go along with the "don't-change-horses" plea of the Roosevelt leaders.

Governor Dewey, who spent the week-end resting at his Quaker Hill farm, will meet Wednesday with Gov. Walter Edge of New Jersey and the Republican congressional delegation from that state.

Urge Wheat Crops Be Stored Locally

HARRISBURG, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The state agricultural adjustment agency urged Pennsylvania farmers today to store wheat locally and await government loan rates because "every elevator in the state is filled."

"Already local market prices have sunk to $1.40 per bushel in some sections of the state," said Willis B. Bergey, chief of the feed and grain section. "This should not be true this year because of the wide demand for livestock feed. If farmers are able to store their crop in bins or granaries until space in terminal elevators is provided the government loan guarantees will permit farmers to collect $1.67 for wheat graded U. S. No. 1, less the freight to these terminal elevators and proper handling charges."

Marines Found Tinian Airstrip Nearly Defenseless

Pounding Given Airstrip Made It Impossible For Japs To Stay

By SGT. TONY SMITH
Marine Corps Combat Correspondent
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

TINIAN, MARANAS ISLANDS—(Delayed)—Invading marines found the prize of Tinian—one of the largest and most important Jap airfields in the Marianas—practically defenseless.

The first to reach the 4,750-foot runway and its surrounding hangars and buildings complained that it was the dullest spot on the island. Advance patrols moved in on the air strip less than 24 hours after the first marine assault waves hit the beach. They found the Japs had deserted all but the west end of the field, and only snipers held out there.

It was possible to walk upright over two-thirds of the field with little danger of attracting enemy fire.

On all sides, the marines found the answer to the question that occupied their minds when they first moved up. The 40-day pounding from sea and air had made living on and about the strip almost impossible.

The administration buildings and hangars were gutted shells. The edges of the field were ringed with the twisted wreckage of twin-engine bombers and Zeroes, mementos of Japan's once-vaunted air power.

Direct hits scored on planes that were housed in concrete revetments testified to the accuracy of American bombing and strafing. Trucks and automobiles in the vicinity looked as though they had been picked off while still in motion. There were no dead Japs to be found, however, and it was assumed that they were removed when the Japs evacuated in force.

Fifty million Chinese refugees are estimated to have left the occupied areas to go into Free China.

Over 1,400 Are Still Striking

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7.—(INS)—War production continued to suffer today as approximately 1,400 war workers remained on strike in the Pittsburgh area.

At the Crucible Steel company's Labele plant, 800 laborers still were on strike because of disputes involving wage rates, while at Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation's Alliquippa plant, 300 men remained idle as a result of a strike by 14 craftsmen.

In the third strike within the last month at two factories of the Pennsylvania Transformer company, 300 workers were off work reportedly because of the discharge of five men considered responsible for two recent strikes.

Meanwhile, approximately 750 men on strike at three plants in western Pennsylvania, were reported returning to work today.

Big Main Breaks On Moravia Street
Twelve-Inch Pipe Bursts At Entrance To George Street Early This Morning
Some damage was caused to the sidewalk along Moravia street, and the area surrounding the intersection of Moravia street and George street was flooded at 6 o'clock this morning, when a 12-inch water main burst, J. Lepere Matthews, superintendent of the City of New Castle Water Company announced today.
Work of repairing the damage was started immediately, with a minimum of inconvenience to patrons in that section. The water had to be shut off entirely at the asphalt plant and the service department of the Pennsylvania Power Company, but other patrons were given service on a diminished scale. Repairs will be completed as speedily as possible, Mr. Matthews stated.

Social Security Boon To Family

Stepmother Able To Hold Family Of Three Children Together Due To Income

Mr. A. and his wife never got along well. Their tastes were too different. He liked quiet and family life and children, whereas Mrs. A. liked the bright lights and night life. She soon began to take her pleasures outside her home, and finally, just six weeks after their third child was born, deserted her husband and children. This story as reported to one of the Social Security offices last month, was told here by E. J. Sinder, manager of the New Castle office.

At first Mr. A. believed his wife would come back, but after a time he gave up hope. Housekeeper after housekeeper took over the house and children. They got along, but no more. Somehow none of them gave the children the understanding and affection that children need. When at last one did, Mr. A. made up his mind quickly. He secured a divorce from his missing wife and married the kindly housekeeper.

The happiness of the household was short-lived. Seven months after the marriage Mr. A. died.

The widow's sole thought was to keep the family together, to keep the children with her. But how was she going to do it? Mr. A. had left an insurance policy of $6,500, but after his first wife deserted him, he had named his brother as the beneficiary in the event of his death. There had been an understanding that the money was to be spent for the benefit of the children. This, however, was not in writing, and the brother had decided to retain the money.

"You'll have to put the children in an orphanage," said a neighbor. "You'll have to let them go to relatives, one here, one there," said another.

But to all such remarks Mrs. A. made the same determined answer: "Never." To forestall trouble, she had herself appointed the children's legal guardian.

It was a heavy blow to Mrs. A. not to be able to get the insurance money for the fatherless children. She remembered, however, that her husband had had a social security card, and armed with this she went up to the Social Security Board field office. She didn't expect to get much. The sum of $15 a month had somehow got connected in her mind with social security and her highest hopes were set on some such sum. "A." the field office manager said to her when she had concluded her story, "I have no notion where you got the idea of $15 a month. It looks to me as if what you are entitled to is much nearer $50 a month."

Mrs. A. gasped. It sounded like a fortune to her. In the new hope that rose in her heart, her bitterness against the selfish brother-in-law faded. She saw her way now. Fifty dollars a month was a big start, and she was sure now she would be able to care for the children. They would live, play, grow up together as their father had wanted.

Today the little family is still together. Mrs. A. receives not $50 but $57.18 a month in survivors insurance. This plus $50 a month which Mrs. A. gets from a building she owns and is able to rent, plus the income she receives from a grown daughter for board and room, is enough. Thanks to survivors insurance the family life continues normal despite the loss of the wage earner.

The field office which serves the New Castle area is located at 306 Neshannock avenue. Mr. Sinder points out that information and service at this office are free to the public. Though this story relates to a family in need, he explains that there is no discrimination in any person's resources in connection with payments to widows and children under this Federal Family Insurance Program.

Two Hundred Attend Engineering Picnic

Entertainment Continues In Spite Of Rain At Pennsylvania Engineering Outing

Over two hundred persons attended the Pennsylvania Engineering company picnic at Cascade park Saturday afternoon, shifting their program from sports to dancing in the pavilion when the heavy rain came.

Beginning at 1 o'clock, the afternoon program consisted of horse shoe pitching, softball, and an egg throwing contest in which participants line up in two rows and toss the eggs at each other, stepping back a pace each time.

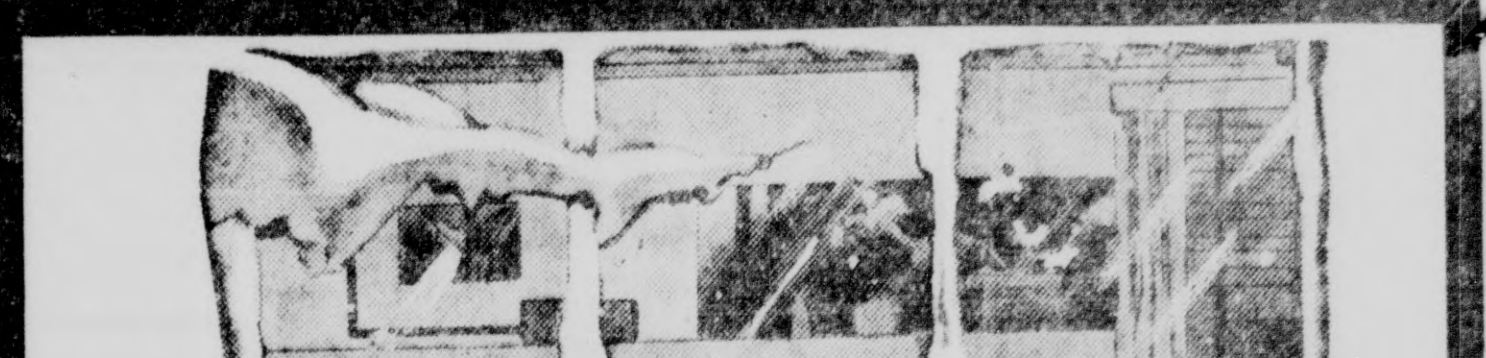

Supper, to date, was the idea is to catch the egg, not to let it smash in your face, but as the distance gets greater, the eggs become more frequent. The last team to get splattered is the one that wins.

Another game was an Italian pastime called Morra, which was as interesting to the spectators as to the players. The dances and reels also helped to work up appetites for the picnic supper. In spite of the rain, the picnic did not break up until 8 o'clock when it began to get dark.

Harry Leathers was chairman of the refreshment committee, with Paul Campbell, Andy Cline, Robert Shock, Jack Lynn, George Hall, and Joe Aiello assisting. On the sports committee were Howard Crossley, Lee Stoops, and Wilbur Grossman.

Japanese Leader Taken By Death

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The death of Yoshimichi Hara, 78, former Japanese minister of justice and president for the last six years of Japan's privy council, was reported today by the Japanese Domei agency.

A wireless transmission picked up by U. S. government monitors followed other Japanese dispatches saying that Emperor Hirohito had conferred the title of baron on the dying man and had awarded him the tordon of the Rising Sun with the paulownia flower in recognition of long service to the throne.

Trained in the law, Hara combined an interest in foreign affairs with activities in developing Japan's mineral resources.

Brownies Scalp Indians Twice

Increase Lead In League, Cardinals Top Reds In 14 Innings, Lose Pitcher Wilks

PIRATES DEFEAT CUBS, END STREAK

By PAT ROBINSON
(International News Service Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The St. Louis Browns are gradually drawing away from the pack and today hold a six-game lead over the second place Red Sox, a backlog that may stand them in good stead on their impending swing through the east where the Yankees, Athletics, Senators and Red Sox are waiting in ambush.

Still, with two-thirds of the season over, a six-game lead is not to be sneezed at, and with their first world series coin dancing before them, the Browns are not likely to crack up. We like the Browns' chances because the other team have been waiting for them to crack but the Browns continue to be pretty good front runners and if they can break even on their eastern trip they should have no trouble running up the pennant on their last home stand.

Browns Win Two
The Browns score six runs in the sixth inning of each game of a double header with the Indians yesterday, and although outlasted in both games, managed to win both 9-6 and 6-4.

The Yankees took a pair from the Athletics, 6-1 and 1-0 behind Alcy Donald and Walter Dubiel.

The Tigers twice topped the White Sox, 10-3 and 3-1. They routed Bill Dietrich in the first inning of the opener and Paul Trout turned in a five-hitter for them in the second tilt.

Homers by Robert Ortiz and Alvin Powell gave the Senators a 3-2 decision over the Red Sox in the first game but they dropped the second one, 3-4.

Cards Top Reds
The Cardinals had to travel 140 miles to down the Reds, 5-4, in a single game. The Cards lost the services of Pitcher Ted Wilks who was hit on the head by a line drive from Steve Mesner's bat and was carried unconscious from the field. Max Lanier finished the game for Wilks and was credited with the victory.

The Phils suffered their 12th straight loss by dropping the opener to the Giants 6-2 but ended their losing streak in the nightcap which they won, 3-1.

The Cubs had their winning streak broken after 11 consecutive victories when the Pirates took two from them, 13-5 and 5-4. The Pirates scored nine runs in the seventh inning of the opener. Paul Derringer was the loser.

And the daffy Dodgers managed to drop a pair to the Braves, 14 to 4 and 8 to 7. A total of 59 hits were made by both teams of which the Braves had 34.

STOCK MARKET IS IMPROVED TODAY

Fairly Active Trading In New York Market As New Week Commences

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The stock market showed improvement today in fairly active trading. Motors and some steels were active from the start. Strength was pronounced in the low priced automobile shares.

In the first hour sixty-eight per cent of the trading was in Continental Motors, Graham-Paige, Hayes Mfg., Hupp and Packard.

Graham-Paige started at 7, a new high, on a sale of 35,000 shares, a week-end gain of 1½ points but gave up part of this later. Last Monday it sold at 23. The speculation has followed entrance of a new group in the company.

Hupp rose to a new top, up more than a point. Packard was fractionally higher. Continental Motors fluctuated around its high. Willys Overland, General Motors and Chrysler all were up fractionally.

U. S. Steel rose a point and Bethlehem gained fractionally followed by Republic. Rails were quiet. Attraction, New York Central and Southern Pacific strengthened as the session progressed, but most of the carriers held around their previous close.

Rail equipments were full, except for American Car & Foundry which became active and scored a substantial fraction.

Coca-Cola rose a point following an increase in the stock from 4 million to 5 million shares. Aviation was quiet. Oils, rubbers, utilities, scores and other groups showed little change in price. Curb stocks were quiet but firm. Rail bonds became active.

BRIEF NEWS OVER STATE

(International News Service)

MONONGAHELA.—"You can put a bronze star in the ribbon I sent home," was T-5 Kenneth Healey's way of announcing he had seen action. The young enlisted man, who fought on Saipan, told his family "we made the air hot for Jap planes."

JOHNSTOWN.—The birthday wish of Mrs. Mary E. Hammerle on her 80th anniversary was that she might live to see her eight great-grandsons return from war. She has four other great grandchildren, 27 grandchildren and six living children.

LEWISTOWN.—When the war came along, John T. Fisher metamorphosed from a saxophone player to a machine gunner without "changing my way of living," Sgt. Fisher, gunner on a B-24 bomber, has flown 16 missions against targets in southern Europe.

DANVILLE.—Housing conditions in the southwest Pacific are still in a primitive stage, Pfc. Fred Snyder wrote to his mother, Mrs. Walter Snyder. "My shack consists of a Jap mosquito net, some canvas for a roof and two woven grass mats," he said.

NEW POLIO CASES

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Four new cases of infantile paralysis were reported today by Pittsburgh's health department, bringing to 94 the number of cases of the dread disease in the area since June 7.

A breakdown of the figures showed 60 cases in the city, 24 in Allegheny county outside Pittsburgh and ten in nearby counties.

Seven of the victims have died. Twelve of the victims were sufficiently improved to be sent home from hospitals yesterday.

Judge Crater Now Missing 14 Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The mysterious disappearance of State Supreme Court Justice Joseph P. Crater, one of the most fascinating mysteries in the history of the New York police department, still is unsolved today 14 years after the jurist vanished in midtown New York.

Crater disappeared on Aug. 6, 1930. The last record police have of anyone seeing him was that he stepped out of a taxicab at 9:15 that night on West 45th street. Previously, he had stuffed $5,100 in cash in his pocketbook and told his secretary that he was going to Westchester for a swim.

The subsequent search for the justice groped blindly along trails that covered half of the world. Today, as the case enters its 15th year, the tenacious missing persons bureau still lists it as open.

Four Cleveland Residents Drown

CLEVELAND, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Four Clevelanders were dead today from drowning as the result of a sudden wind shift which in a few seconds turned mirror-like Lake Erie into choppy sea.

Six other persons were rescued and a large number of small boats were distressed by the wind, which increased to 40 miles an hour.

Those drowned were Allan Dipple, 22, Emlyn T. Lewis, 49, Mrs. Anna Brass, 43, and Donald Booth, 13.

Oil Plants In Silesia Bombed

ROME, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Escorted Liberators and Fortresses today bombed two synthetic oil plants at Blechhammer in Silesia, 75 miles southeast of Breslau. Good results were reported. Intense anti-aircraft fire was encountered.

Installations at Novi Sad, northwest of Belgrade, also were attacked, together with an airfield at Albunar, 21 miles northeast of Belgrade.

Forty-one percent of the homes in the United States are heated by bituminous coal.
